WASHINGTON COUNTY MAN IS SEVERELY WOUNDED

Name of Clarence E. Reynolds Carried in the Official Casualty List.

The name of Clarence E. Reynolds, whose postoffice address is Vallonia but who lives just over the river in Washington county, was carried in the casualty list this afternoon as severely wounded in action in France. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Reynolds and has been in the service for several months. He enlisted about a year ago in Wyoming. So far as known his parents have not been notified recently that he was injured. However, about three months ago they were notified that he was wounded slightly in action, but later he wrote to them that he had fully recovered and expected to go back into the front line within a very short time. It is possible that the name was delayed in reaching the war department or that he has been twice wounded. He underwent an operation for appendicitis after being wounded on June 9.

The flag at the court house was lowered to half mast today in memory of the late Private James Harold Pruden, of Cortland, who died at Camp Zachary Taylor, Louisville, Saturday, following a short illness with heart trouble. The funeral was conducted Monday at Cortland.

JURY TO DECIDE NEAR BEER CASE

Action to Test New Licensing and Regulatory Ordinance on Trial in City Court.

THREE WITNESSES ON STAND

Attorneys Devote Time to Presentation of Law—Case to Close Late This Afternoon.

The council chamber has been crowded throughout the day with spectators who were interested in the trial of the city against Henry J. Kirsch, charged with violating the new beer ordinance. The case was on trial before a jury of twelve men, with Mayor Burkart presiding. The action was filed, it is understood, as a means to test the validity of the new licensing and regulatory provisions.

Thirty-five veniremen were summoned by Officer Charles Wallace, who served as court bailiff. The morning was spent in the selection of a jury and the twelve men who heard the case are:

Chris Rau, B. F. Gillman, Oakley Allen, Alex Toms, Louis Sweany, Thomas Haley, Charles McGravel, J. S. Mills, James Honan, Phil J. Pettig, C. H. Ahlbrand and Ben Simon.

Only three witnesses were called to the stand as the evidence in the case was not disputed. C. H. Wallace, city police officer, testified that he saw a sale of near beer made in the room which is rented by the defendant Kirsch. Kirsch was called as a witness and admitted that he had made the sale. Harry Findley, city clerk, was called to the stand and testified as to the ordinance in question.

The evidence having been established the attorneys went at once to the task of presenting arguments before the jury. John M. Lewis, city attorney, was the first speaker and he declared that the city council was empowered under the statutes of Indiana to enact the ordinance in question.

E. P. Elsner and Frank Brannaman, of Brownstown, represented the defendant. The first address on behalf of the defendant was made by Elsner, who insisted that the case was not a saloon fight. He said that the council did not have power to pass the ordinance and that it was the only one of its kind in Indiana. He said that Indianapolis with 800 near beer places of business did not have a licensing ordinance and that the city attorney there had stated that there was no authority by which the council could enact such an ordinance.

Brannaman then spoke and said that

BANKERS MAY APPLY FOR DEFERRED CLASSIFICATION

Definite Ruling Given by Provost Marshal as Term "Industries."

By United Press.

Washington, September 4—Provost Marshal General Crowder today announced that bankers and other persons engaged in employment not previously regarded as warranting deferred classification may now apply for exemption on ground that their work is necessary to the nation. Men holding important positions in the Red Cross and similar organizations, those engaged in public health and similar employes are entitled to deferred classification. This ruling removes the danger of a too narrow construction of the word "industries" which many draft boards have construed as excluding bankers, and those engaged in commerce and similar occupations.

KEYSTONE CITIES DIRECTLY MENACED

Germans Did Not Dream Allies Would Attack Their Strongest Defenses.

REINFORCEMENTS FOR HUNS

General Mangin is Making it Hot for the Armies of the Crown Prince.

(By William Philip Simms, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Paris, September 4.—Cambrai, Douai and Lens today are directly menaced by the advancing British.

Between Haig's advance guard and the important cities of Brai and Douai, little in the way of fortifications remains and if Von Belew checks the allies before they reach the gates of the two towns he must sacrifice a considerable number of his fast dwindling reserves.

Lens is being more and more pinched by General Horne's British fifth army and may give way at any moment. Every yard that the British advance astride the Scarpe river now adds peril to this action of German resistance.

Unofficial dispatches yesterday reported Lens captured, but Haig's official only mentioned a slight advance of British troops in the city's outskirts.

Apparently Hindenburg and Ludendorff have been caught napping again. They little dreamed that the allies would tackle the strongest defenses on the western front without long and hard preparation, but just southward of the scene of this latest victory General Byng last fall sent an army of tanks crashing their way through a similar barrier of earthworks tunnels and barbed wire the size of a man's little finger. He thus had the answer to this problem at his finger tips; to wit, he gave the Germans a dose of the same medicine, driving the wedge clear through seven rows of defenses despite the best efforts of all German divisions to halt him.

A further advance in this region must vitally effect whatever plans Hindenburg and Ludendorff may have had in mind. Seemingly the German believed the allies would pause when they came up to the Hindenburg line and as southward of Queant the line has not yet been reached, the enemy higher command apparently figured they had some time yet. Foch, the official timer of the allied operations, however, figured the enemy would reason that way—and hit; Haig re-sponding like a thoroughbred to the call for action.

The enemy reinforcements are pouring in from all directions in order to try to save Cambrai and Douai. Undoubtedly they will put up a bitter fight for these places. As for Lens, I am permitted to say that not only itself but the coal basin which is of the utmost value, are probably already southward of the British advance. The French are keeping up their pressure eastward of the canal on Nord, while the fighting continues northward of Soissons.

General Mangin is localizing his blows for the moment, but those in the direction of Amizy are increasing the crown prince's uneasiness along the Vesle.

The enemy is making the most desperate effort to hold up the French—hereabouts, hurling the Prussian guards into the fray time and time again. They know that yielding here will compromise the entire line from Soissons to Peronne. Though General Pershing is not making a rapid advance he is detaining a large number of Germans who otherwise might be in the fighting farther north in the region of the Scarpe.

GERMANS MAKE FOR HINDENBURG LINE

Enemy Sacrificing Thousands to Reach Fortifications Already Badly Shattered.

CAMBRAI SIX MILES DISTANT

This Represents a Five-Mile Advance From Opening Made in the Enemy's Defenses.

(By Lowell Mellett, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

With the British Armies in France, September 4—Everywhere on the front now being battered by the British the Germans are seeking cover behind the Hindenburg line. Notwithstanding the fact that the line itself is seriously broken the enemy high command is sacrificing thousands in an effort to reach it.

At noon Tuesday, the British were only six miles from Cambrai, having advanced nearly five miles from the opening which was broken in the German defenses. Into cages already containing 4,000 German prisoners, 2,200 more were dumped Tuesday. This was only part of the previous night's gleaming.

CAMBRAI THREATENED BY BRITISH ADVANCE

Push Extends Across the Canal Du Nord and Germans are Forced Back More Than Two Miles North of Peronne.—Evidences Accumulating That Huns Are Preparing for Retirement From Wyttschaete and Messines Ridges.—Enemy Machine Gunners Working Strenuously to Stave Off Retreat Against Important Iron Industrial City.—Counter Attacks by Germans North of Lens are Repulsed.—General Mangin's Forces Progressing Towards the Chemin Des Dames.

BYNG'S ARMY BAGS 2,000 PRISONERS

The British have crossed the canal Du Nord, more than two miles north of Peronne, it was learned today. Field Marshal Haig's statement said the canal had been reached. Ecort St. Quentin has been occupied.

The British hold Romancourt, eight and a half miles west of Cambrai. A British armored car is reported to have entered Marquoin, on the main highway between Arras and Cambrai, slightly more than half way between the two cities.

Allied detachments have crossed the Vesle river at several points, and French and Americans are in the western outskirts of Coucy-Le-Chateau, the French war office announced. One thousand prisoners were taken.

General Mangin's troops are reported to have reached the edge of Vauxillon tableland and are progressing toward the Chemin-Des-Dames.

Evidences are piling up that the Germans are retiring from the Wyttschaete and Messines ridges.

German machine guns are industriously indicating the intention of the enemy to hold the canal line, temporarily, at least, staving off the threat against Cambrai.

In the meantime, the British have taken another 3,000 prisoners from several points.

General Byng's patrols in Manencourt, southwest of Cambrai, encountered heavy shell fire.

Lechelle is held by the British. Ypres is reported to be likewise held, although the German machine gun line is just beyond the town.

Tadpole Cope, scene of most desperate fighting in the last Cambrai battle, is in British hands. Airplanes reported two canal crossings destroyed, seven miles west of Cambrai. Four crossings are still intact there.

Byng's army took 2,000 prisoners and twenty-two field guns in the twenty-four hours ending last night. North of Lens, the enemy attacked yesterday, driving back the British. The British came right ahead with another assault and soon reestablished their post.

Steady advances by British and French troops were announced overnight official statements issued by the London and Paris war office. Field Marshal Haig also noted abandonment of enemy stores and other signs of a most hurried German retirement before the British in Picardy.

British outposts were reported by Haig in the western outskirts of Lens, the important coal city.

Lens was unofficially reported captured yesterday.

Haig said the British continued to progress on the battle field between the Scarpe and the Senne rivers, reaching the general line of Ypres, Beaumonts-Cambrai, Barrals, Rumacourt, and L'Ecluse. German rear guards were defeated and heavily punished suffering severe losses, Haig reported.

The Paris war office reported French infantry had crossed the Somme before Epancourt and recorded fresh progress east of Noyon.

American artillery continues to aid the French in pounding away toward the Chemin des Dames. Guns have been moved beyond Juvigny and are shelling the enemy positions in the Noville region, with light pieces joining in the barrage fire.

During the attacks of the past twenty-four hours, American guns have been laying down smoke barrages to help the French and American infantry. The artillery work today received high commendation from the French commander.

The enemy continues to show signs of nervousness along the Vesle as the French tenth army continues to push on. His observation balloons have been pulled back and many other signs indicate preparations to withdraw rapidly when necessary. Quantities of Boche gas were thrown into Fismes Monday night without effect. During the same night an American patrol entered Banoches and had a sharp encounter with the enemy. Otherwise the Vesle front was quiet.

What the War Moves Mean

(By J. W. T. Mason, United Press War Expert.)

New York, September 3—Von Hindenburg's back to Belgium movement has been brought about by fresh activity by Field Marshal Haig's victory in the Queant sector. The Germans have been compelled to evacuate Queant to escape being pocketed as the result of the British Progress along the Arras-Cambrai sector. At the same time they have evacuated Lens because the smashing blows of the British in the Queant area are making untenable the whole of the Wotan section of the Hindenburg line.

Von Hindenburg must now readjust his line with great rapidity or face the possibility of a disastrous separation of his northern Flanders army from the rest of his front.

A circling movement is now being developed by Field Marshal Haig Against Cambrai. If von Hindenburg delays his retirement from Cambrai much longer while this envelopment continues, he will be unable to fall back from Cambrai upon Valenciennes, near the Belgian border. Valenciennes is the principal supply base for the Cambrai sector and is the natural receiving center for the quantities of military stores that von Hindenburg must try to rescue from Cambrai.

Field Marshal Haig's ambitious project, as it is now developing, is to cut off Cambrai from Valenciennes and to compel the Germans to move their supplies further south from Valenciennes along the Belgian border. Von Hindenburg will certainly lose a large part of his store if he is compelled to accept this dictation from Field Marshal Haig. A retirement upon Cambrai from the southwest, the opposite direction from Field Marshal Haig's present advance, has been ordered by von Hindenburg. His purpose is apparently to try to move his troops into a position where they will not have to relinquish the Cambrai-Valenciennes railway. But to do this he must move quickly, and if he speeds his retirement too rapidly, channels in this country and in all parts of the world. Numerous are the ends which the German government hoped to attain in this way. But one by one the different propaganda campaigns have failed.

Newspaper dispatches now state that the kaiser is carrying his propaganda into the American trenches. Circulars the purpose of which is to impress American soldiers with the "innocence of Germany" in this war have been scattered broadcast. The kaiser does not recognize what the effect of these circulars will be. When an American soldier reads about the alleged "innocence" of Germany he will immediately recall the horrors which were inflicted upon Belgium; the various violations of international law; the sinking of Red Cross ships bearing wounded soldiers and nurses to their home; the brutal bombardment of Red Cross hospitals after an agreement was reached at the request of Germany that no bombs be dropped for a specified time within a certain area; the mutilation of soldiers who have been taken captives; the outraging of helpless girls and women whose homes have been devastated and their fathers and husbands cruelly murdered; and a score of other offenses which are too barbarous and brutal to even be mentioned in a newspaper that is read by respectable people.

idly, his retreat will be in danger of becoming a rout.

The designs of the Hohenzollern militarists to make their domination of Russia the basis of Germany's future economic expansion, have been heavily discredited by the attempted assassination of Lenin.

Russia has again proven herself unalterably hostile to all forms of absolutism, whether directed by the Czar, the kaiser or the bolshevik. The terrorists, who killed the German ambassador to Russia and the German dictator in the Ukraine, have proven by their third victim that Germany has been unable to take repressive measures for the allowing the deaths of Ambassador Von Mirbach and Field Marshal von Eichhorn. The suppressions of the Hohenzollerns when faced by the Nihilist organizations is now demonstrated. The kaiser cannot carry out his anti-democratic policies in Russia against his own self-confessed failure to protect his reactionary agents. The shots fired at Lenin cause echoes of dismay to ring in Berlin.

The Hohenzollerns not only are helpless to safeguard German representatives in Russia, but they cannot rely on using Russian tools for their unholy purposes.

The attempt against Lenin is due to the fact that German influences have tried to make their way into the governing control of Russia. The policy of assassination recently put into operation by the terrorists shows every evidence of being exclusively anti-German in its purposes. German victims have hitherto been the only ones selected and the terrorists proclaim that they will not tolerate foreign interference with the Moscow and Ukraine governments.

The selection of Lenin as the third victim can have no other meaning than to warn all whom it may concern that Russian leaders who connive at German oppression must be classed with the German autocrats themselves.

Then the kaiser scatters messages to American soldiers declaring that Germany was forced into the struggle. The effect will be the opposite of what the kaiser hopes for. American soldiers are enlightened and know who are responsible for the war against civilization. The kaiser overlooks the fact that American soldiers are not ground down under the iron heel of a merciless autocracy in ignorance and darkness. He is dealing with the men who have taken their places to make this nation the best in all the world. They are fighting for a purpose and that purpose is to crush the kaiser and the brutal methods for which he stands. The answer of the American soldiers to the newest form of insulting propaganda will be a heavier flood of shot and shell and a new determination to rid the world of its great menace.

The President has fixed the price of wheat for next year at $2.20, the same that was guaranteed for the crop of 1918. The fixing of a minimum guaranteed price means that the American farmer can sow another big crop of wheat this fall with the absolute assurance that he will receive a good price for it at harvest time. The business of farming is more or less uncertain at the best. The farmer may use every precaution known in modern agricultural circles to protect his crops, yet the weather, insects and many other conditions may be encountered just before the harvest season with the result that his compensation is very small. But the hazard of the wheat crop is somewhat reduced by the guaranteed price for the year's crop.

When we think of what the American airmen are doing, of the great risks which they are taking daily in battling with the Germans thousands of feet above the ground and of the countless dangers they meet on each excursion into foreign territory, it is a mighty little sacrifice for us to forego that ride in a pleasure automobile on Sunday. Yet, there are a few motorists who feel that the Sunday ride cannot be given up. Patriotism is not measured by what we say, but by what we do.

And come to think about it, what Senator Sherman says about the American government being radically changed under the guise of war needs, furnishes some food for thought.

The allied world is wondering where Marshal Foch will strike next. Yet the anxiety among the allies is not nearly as great as the worry that is felt all over the fatherland.

Christian P. Loudon Dead.

Christian P. Loudon, who has been ill some time, died at his home at this place Thursday morning, August 29, at 10 o'clock after an illness with a complication of diseases. Deceased was the son of Samuel C. and Sybilie Loudon and was born at Bono, Lawrence County, November 12, 1843, making his age 74 years, 9 months and 17 days. He was the last of his father's family of seventeen. At the age of twelve years he moved with his parents on a farm in the neighborhood in which he resided at the time of his death, and at the age of seventeen years he answered his country's call and enlisted in Co. B, 50th Indiana Regiment Vol. of the Civil War, serving more than three years. At the close of the war, receiving an honorable discharge, he returned home carrying with him the disabilities of a soldier.

He was united in marriage to Agnes Jane Wilson May 4, 1864, and they moved to the present farm. He engaged in farm life, later becoming deputy tax collector for the county but remained on the farm and erected a comfortable home there.

Nine children were born, namely Belle, Lula, Charles, Minnie, Mattie, Margaret, Ben, Grace and Sim, all living to be grown men and women before the family circle was broken. Death first claimed the third daughter, Mrs. Minnie Stewart in 1896. In 1906 came the summons which claimed the dear wife and mother, leaving the home in deepest gloom and sorrow, and three years later, in 1909, the second daughter, Miss Lula was also called to the great beyond, and now when the time came for the husband and father to join them he was ready and willing to go. He became a member of the Christian church at Pleasant Ridge in early life, all the members of the family following his noble example. He was a regular attendant at all church services being one of the elders until failing health in the last year of his life prevented, and then by his request, short services were held in the home. He was confined to his bed for the past five months, but at all times he bore his suffering with patience and Christian fortitude.

We realize that the pleasure of the Loudon homestead are gone, but what a consolation to know they can be reunited again in a family circle which can never be broken.

Surviving are: Mrs. Belle Dexter, of Lafayette, Mrs. Grace Anthony, of Southport, Charles and Ben of this place, Mrs. Sina Cosby, Misses Mattie and Margaret, who remain at the homestead, fifteen grandchildren and two great grandchildren and a host of friends and relatives. After short services at the home, the remains were conveyed to the Pleasant Ridge church where services were conducted by Rev. J. W. Baldwin, of Columbus, and Rev. L. C. Winn, of Edinburg. The remains were laid to rest in the cemetery near by, conveyed to the grave by six of his old comrades, namely, Alex Scott, David Sutherland, Joshua England, Preston Wineinger and J. F. Curry, Undertaker Hague, of Medora.

WEAK, NERVOUS WOMAN

Benefited by Friends' Advice, Passes the Good Advice Along to Others.

Milwaukee, Wis.—"I was weak nervous, all run down, no appetite and had taken different medicines without benefit. A friend advised me to try Vinol. It gave me a wonderful appetite, I sleep well, have gained in weight and am now strong and well."—Mrs. E. Streyl.

We strongly recommend Vinol, which contains beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptones and glycerophosphates for all weak, nervous, run-down conditions and to build up strength after sickness. William H. Federmann and Druggists Everywhere.

It Cost Just 20 Cents More
To Produce the Big One than it did the Runt

THE BIG ONE WAS FED AVALON FARMS HOG-TONE

—The Liquid Hog Conditioner, Fattener and Worm Remover—

—THE RUNT WASN'T

THEY both started life at the same time and weight. They were given the same feed under the same conditions - with one exception. The big one got his regular dose of AVALON FARMS HOG-TONE—the Liquid Hog Tonic, Conditioner and Fattener—and the runt didn't.

The big one is the kind that tops markets and brings big profits to the pockets of the hog raiser. The runt cost more to raise than he will ever bring in the market. And the difference was brought about by 20 cents worth of AVALON FARMS HOG-TONE. HOG-TONE puts new life into hogs—makes them eat more and grow fat at an amazing rate. It helps them to combat disease and eliminate the worms that are the hog raiser's greatest foe to profits. Splendid for pregnant sows—helps to produce healthier, sturdier pigs. Come in the store—tell us the number of your herd—and we will give you enough HOG-TONE to treat all your hogs 60 days. You don't give us a penny now. If the results of the HOG-TONE treatment fail to satisfy you, it will cost you nothing.

HOW TO AVOID BACKACHE AND NERVOUSNESS

Told by Mrs. Lynch From Own Experience.

Providence, R. I.—"I was all run down in health, was nervous, had headaches, my back ached all the time, I was tired and had no ambition for anything. I had taken a number of medicines which did me no good. One day I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for women, so I tried it. My nervousness and backache and headaches disappeared. I gained in weight and feel fine, so I can honestly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any woman who is suffering as I was."—Mrs. ADELIN B. LYNCH, 100 Plain St., Providence, R. I.

Backache and nervousness are symptoms or nature's warnings, which indicate a functional disturbance or an unhealthy condition which often develops into a more serious ailment.

Women in this condition should not continue to drag along without help, but profit by Mrs. Lynch's experience, and try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and for special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

MRS. C. T. DOUGLASS DIES SUDDENLY NEAR LEESVILLE

Correspondent to Weekly Republican Succumbs to Organic Heart Disease.

Mrs. C. T. Douglass, aged sixty-three, for many years a correspondent to the Seymour Weekly Republican, died suddenly at her home near Leesville. Her body was found on the floor of the summer kitchen Sunday morning. Because of the mail service between Leesville and Seymour, she wrote her weekly items on Saturday and mailed them at once so they could reach this office in time to be printed in The Weekly Republican. This office received the Leesville news items from her as usual this week, showing that they were written a few hours before her death. She was one of the most faithful correspondents of the Weekly news gathering corps and she seldom failed to send in the items from her community.

Mrs. Douglass has suffered from organic heart disease for some time and the fatal attack overtook her shortly after she had arisen Sunday morning, she being in the act of building a fire in the cook stove when stricken. Her husband, who at the time was at the barn feeding, found her lifeless body when he returned to the house and the coroner and undertaker were immediately notified.

The deceased was highly respected throughout the community and her many friends learned with deepest regret of her sudden demise. Funeral services were conducted from the late residence Monday at 10 o'clock and burial was in the Leesville cemetery.

CROWDER GIVES WARNING THAT ALL MUST REGISTER

Punishment Provided For Slacker Will be Administered, He Declares.

Attempts to evade registration on September 12 by men made subject to military service by the man power bill fixing the draft age limits at 18 and 45, will be hopeless, Provost Marshal General Crowder's office has asserted, in summarizing the government's experience with the draft to date.

Between 20,000 and 25,000 men who failed to register in 1917 have been rounded up since, the statement said, and private and semi-public organizations assisting the government's own agencies are on the trail of the rest. Measures to catch delinquents have improved with experience, and the process now moves most expeditiously.

Pointing out that the penalty of a year's imprisonment and forfeiture of exempted rights immediately devolves upon willful slackers, the statement said, hardly a community in the United States had failed to show swift visitation of the punishment where it was earned. While 3,000 men subject to the first draft had crossed to Mexico, their names are on file with the department of justice, with cases against them ready, and sooner or later they will face the bar. In the meantime even fugitives who possess means are being made miserable by the natives and by other Americans who reside there. Canada is now automatically returning those who have fled there, or conscripting them into her own army.

Courts manifest no sympathy for evaders, said the statement, and women in all neighborhoods, especially those whose own relatives have gone into service, have been exceptionally active in turning over information to draft boards, police and federal officers that has been used in the later prosecutions.

MANY FACES MISSING FROM THE OLD HOME TOWN

The Folks at Home Will Remember Them When Fourth Liberty Loan Campaign Opens September 28.

Have you noticed that the old town isn't altogether what it used to be? That somehow there is a difference when you go down the street? That the old places are more subdued and quiet; less busy and noisy? That go where you will, the club, the bowling alley, the billiard parlor, anywhere, there is the same subtle sense of change?

The old voices no longer hail you with such eager challenge, such royal welcome, such whole souled good-fellowship; the old smiles no longer greet you so warmly and the old hand claps on the shoulder no longer bring you the same old sense of comradeship and friendly interest. Something seems to have slipped silently out of life.

For scores of the old faces are missing: faces that you knew and loved the best.

They are "over there" in the khaki-clad ranks that are slowly pushing the gray Hun line backward toward the Rhine. They are taking up the burden of civilization, of democracy and freedom; the liberation of a half world threatened with enslavement; the perpetuation of our own national liberty and safety. The overthrow of Kaiserdom.

And some of them are never to come back! None of us will ever forget these missing faces; the faces of our friends, our brothers, and sweethearts, our husbands and fathers. All of us will hope to welcome them home again, triumphant from the firing line, the jaws of death, the literal mouth of the inferno.

Nor must any of us forget them in the coming Fourth Liberty Loan drive.

For it is to strengthen them and their fight, to hurry their ultimate victory and to speed their return, that these bonds are to be offered. That and that alone.

Remember these missing faces; these faces that we love. And begin at once your saving for the Fourth loan.

BANKERS URGE EXCHANGE OF FOUR PERCENT BONDS

Period Allowed for Conversion of Liberty Bonds Will Expire November 9.

By United Press.
Indianapolis, September 4—Bankers here today urged Liberty Bond holders to take advantage of the opportunity offered by the government to exchange bonds bearing 4 per cent. interest for the securities yielding a fractional larger return.

This conversion may be accomplished by presenting the bonds to the bank through which the original subscription was made. Bankers say comparatively few people have taken advantage of the opportunity to secure greater interest on their bonds despite constant urging of the federal government.

Did you know that the Gas Defense Division of the U. S. Army is asking for an unlimited supply of walnuts and hickory nuts, as well as shells of these nuts? Don't Waste Paper

Buy what you need, buy what you can use to advantage, but DON'T WASTE PAPER.

This is the instruction sent out by the War Industries Board to every user of paper. It means that consumers shall continue to use whatever quantity of paper is needed, but it also means that wastage is to be stopped. Sell the scrap paper instead of burning it.

Continuance of paper supply is dependent on the strict observance of the rulings of the War Industries Board, one of which is that paper is not to be wasted.

Here are the seven reasons set out by the government why paper should not be wasted:

1. The government's requirements for all kinds of paper are increasing rapidly and must be supplied.
2. Paper making requires a large amount of fuel which is essential for war purposes. A pound of paper wasted represents from one to three pounds of coal wasted.
3. Paper contains valuable chemicals necessary for war purposes. Economy in the use of paper will release a large quantity of these materials for making ammunition or poisonous gases.
4. Paper making requires labor and capital, both of which are needed in war service.
5. Paper making requires transportation space. Economy in the use of paper will release thousands of freight cars for war purposes.
6. Greater care in the purchase and use of paper will save money. Your savings will help finance the war.
7. Strictest economy in the use of paper will prevent a shortage.

By ordering your supply of stationery or other needed paper from the Republican office you will secure a quality of material and workmanship that will eliminate waste, because every sheet will be in useable condition. Try your next order here.

LOCAL MILLER BUYS POUND OF BURBANK'S SUPER WHEAT

Small Quantity of High Yielding Grain Will Be Sown for Experimental Purpose.

M. S. Blish, a local miller, has purchased a pound of the famous Burbank "super wheat," which he will sow at Woodstock Gardens for experimental purposes. The grain was procured by Mr. Blish at a cost of $5 a pound and every grain of it will be closely watched and protected. Mr. Blish expects to use the yield next summer for seed purposes and may have some for sale among the farmers. The grain is said to produce a bigger yield than any other variety.

Concerning the new variety The Rosenbaum Review says:

After experiments extending over eleven years, Luther Burbank, the California horticulturist, has evolved a "super wheat," containing over 14 per cent. gluten, a most astounding improvement in the grain, especially as wheat in California runs to starch more than gluten. As a matter of fact, millers have found it necessary in the past to mix California and northern wheat in order to produce a bread making flour. The new type of wheat is somewhat after the appearance of the prize "Marquis" but has a very large, white flinty kernel, and produces a very white flour. It may be grown from Hudson Bay to Potomac and is intended to replace the California variety.

According to Mr. Burbank, it is an exceedingly early wheat, the earliest of some four or five hundred varieties which he has been growing. It has been tested alongside of sixty-eight of the best wheats of the world, and has exceeded them all in yield, uniformity, and all other desirable characteristics. The growth is strong, being four feet on good ordinary soil, it tillers unusually well, and on ordinary valley soil, without special cultivation, care or fertilizing, produced this Summer at the rate of 49.88 bushels per acre, every plant and every kernel being uniform, as this wheat was originally grown from one single kernel. Even at present prices of ordinary wheat for milling purposes, it will be seen that the crop of each acre would purchase an acre of the best wheat land.

Like all other wheats grown in California, it is a winter wheat, and should probably be treated as such, Mr. Burbank says. In planting the wheat he advises that it be well protected from birds, which is best done by drilling or planting in rows by hand. Too rich soil or heavy manuring is not advisable for this wheat, as it is more apt to lodge and the crop is not generally increased, especially on naturally good ground. On poorer soils some good complete commercial fertilizer will increase the yield. Forty to fifty pounds of seed per acre, one-half to one inch deep, will give best results with this new seed wheat.

Mrs. Alice Furgeson of Nashville, Brown county, was here this morning enroute to Washington, where she will visit relatives and friends for the remainder of the week.

SEAMAN WIESMAN RAPIDLY RECOVERING FROM WOUNDS

Injured by Premature Explosion of a Depth Bomb on the Ship Orizaba.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Wiesman, of Crothersville, have received word that their son, Seaman Clarence A. Wiesman, who was recently wounded, is rapidly recovering. He was wounded during a premature explosion of a depth charge on board the U. S. S. Orizaba, August 17.

Seaman Wiesman enlisted in the U. S. N. R. F., May 21st, and after training at Great Lakes, for six weeks, was assigned to the U. S. S. Orizaba, and was returning from his second trip across when the accident occurred.

The Orizaba is a new, oil-burning American ship of 12,000 tons, in the troop transport service, and has made her third trip across.

Several reports give an account of the Orizaba having been attacked by a submarine and sunk, but, while the fleet of nine transports and convoy of fourteen destroyers, sunk at least three submarines on this trip, none of our ships was damaged. The transports are so well guarded, there is little danger of one being sunk. The Orizaba, herself, has the record of putting down a submarine unaided.

A clipping from an Eastern paper, gives the cause of the explosion as being an accident in a try-out given an invention, by Lieut. Williamson, the executive officer of the ship, for the improvement of depth bombs.

The depth charge is one of the latest and most effective weapons against the submarine, and Lieut. Williamson had perfected a device to control the explosion of the charge, but this time it did not control, and in the explosion following the executive officer and one gunner were killed, two others died about dark, and about thirty men were wounded; among them being Seaman Wiesman, who was standing guard twenty feet away. While his wounds were severe, they were not serious, the extent of his injuries being punctured wounds of the right and left thigh and left side. In all, he received fourteen wounds, but only four were deep enough to require surgical attention.

Thirteen of the wounded men were removed to the Naval Hospital, at Brooklyn, N. Y., when the ship came in port, six days later. It was at first reported that the Jackson county boy was removed to Brooklyn, but a sailor's love for his ship and his ship-mates prompted him to request that he might be permitted to remain in the ship hospital, so that he might make the next trip across with the ship.

The Orizaba is well equipped to care for her wounded, having a hospital with a capacity of sixty-four patients and a corps of thirty hospital attendants. Mr. and Mrs. Wiesman are highly gratified with the excellent care given their son, and were glad to learn that no after effects are expected to result from his injuries.

Seaman Wiesman's work was largely in the captain's and executive's office, and in the death of Lieut. Williamson, feels that he has lost a friend. His death is especially deplorable, as he did not live to learn of his promotion to the rank of captain, nor to know the full extent of the value his invention will be in aiding to destroy the submarine menace.

CHESTER MILLER JOINS "DEATH DEALING SQUAD"

Says That Bunch is Anxious to Get "Over" to Make "Wurst" of the Kaiser.

Writing from Camp Sheridan, Ala., Private Chester C. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Miller, southwest of the city, states that several Indiana boys in camp there have organized the "Death Dealing Squad" and that they are anxious to get overseas so they can run down the kaiser.

His letter to this paper follows: "We are out at the rifle range today. We packed up at 3:30 this morning at Camp Sheridan with our dog tents and hiked to the range, arriving about eleven o'clock. We are camping in real army style now. It begins to look like France here at the range.

"There are several boys in our company from Indiana, and we have organized a club, and we call it the 'Death Dealing Squad'. If this bunch ever gets hold of the kaiser there won't be much left of him. We will make 'wurst' of him.

"This army business is a man's game and down here is being played by real men too. We also have an aero training camp here. There are also several British and French officers here.

"Our officers are real workers, and like the rest of us will not be satisfied until the Hohenzollers, Haps-

Red Cross Notes.

The quota of 1100 socks from Jackson County Red Cross Chapter must be in the Indianapolis warehouse by the middle of September. Every effort must be made by those knitting, to turn in finished socks and to bring in the unfinished ones to the Red Cross Shop as soon as possible.

Also all other work for the Red Cross must be in within the next week or ten days. Sewers and knitters are urged to bring in their work at the earliest date possible. It is thought that the quotas for Jackson County Chapter will be filled on a greater number of the articles, yet it is doubtful if the quota of work which must necessarily be done at the Red Cross shop will be met unless the ladies of Seymour do their patriotic duty and go to the shop just as many days as they can. It is stated that for several days they have only had one or two ladies beside the instructors come to help. THE WAR IS NOT OVER. Ladies of Seymour are urged to help in this work so Jackson county can "go over the top" meeting all quotas.

CHAPTER II.

The Chief.

Inspector Martin McGee, the middle-aged solid executive of the New York detectives, sat in his businesslike office running over the reports on the Hanska murder, now less than a calendar day old but already the subject of those innumerable extras which the newsboys were shouting under his windows. Nothing in the formal documents before him served to give him any new light. Lawrence Wade—that looked like the man. Wade was missing from the Curfew Club when the police arrived; however, through the good memories of a taxicab driver and a ticket seller, he had been traced to Boston and there arrested in the very act of engaging European passage.

The formal documents in the Hanska case interested Inspector McGee less, a great deal less, than an informal verbal report made that morning by the sergeant in command of the reserves.

"We didn't know nothing about her, Chief," he said, "except that she had an order from you telling us to keep our hooks off her. Forgot the name—something French with a L—e behind it. It was all right, wasn't it?"

Inspector McGee understood at once; and the information brought a little thrill. He had given only two such papers in his career; and the other was held by a man. So Rosalie Le Grange had bobbed up again—Rosalie Le Grange, trance, test and clairvoyant medium, follower of a small half-criminal trade but friend of society against larger criminals. How curiously that woman had glanced in and out of his life, and what luck she had brought!

As he bent over his desk in unaccustomed meditation, the doorman brought a card—"Mme. Rosalie Le Grange"—and behind him she appeared.

"Well, well!" exclaimed Martin McGee, rising as though to some great personage, "back again! Say, you just couldn't keep out of big doings, could you? And how pretty you look—prettier and prettier all the time! What hauled you into the Hanska case?"

"I ain't in the Hanska case at all," responded Rosalie Le Grange, answering his second question first, "at least not deep, Martin McGee." She flashed upon him her dimples, snapped at him her great gray eyes.

"Nearly everybody that's lived long enough in New York has had a murder or a burglary or something in the same block. It was bound to happen to me in time. It happened; and instead of minding my own business like the rest, I butted straight in. When the reasons for a thing get too tangled up for you and me to follow, we stick a label on it an' call it luck. But there," she checked herself, "this is just one of my platform inspirational talks like I used to give the sitters in my test seances. Only then I laid it to the spirits. Now I lay it to Rosalie Le Grange."

"Used to?" echoed Inspector McGee. "Does that mean you've cut it out?"

"Well, do these clothes and this five-dollar-an-hour massage on my poor old face look like I got 'em from sitters at two dollars a throw?" inquired Rosalie Le Grange. "Say, ask me about it, please. I'm dying to tell."

"All right; I've asked," responded Martin McGee, a kind of dull fire illuminating his clean-shaven jowly police countenance.

"Now," said Rosalie Le Grange, "I'm going to astonish you, Marty McGee. I got it from Robert H. Norcross—the railroad king."

McGee's face fell. This mascot of his, this curious good fairy who had skipped in and out of his career, scattering golden successes, was a kind of an ideal. That she should "work" a doddering millionaire—as Norcross had been in his last years—for the tainted coin of aged folly, was a blow to what idealism an Inspector of detectives may hope still to cherish. Rosalie, skilled from youth to catch and interpret the unconsidered expression of the human countenance, read his emotion at once.

"Now, I don't mean at all what you mean, Martin McGee," she said. "Listen. It don't matter what I did, or how I did it—but I saved this Robert H. Norcross from makin' about the biggest kind of a fool out of himself. Do you remember," she asked suddenly, "that they probated the Norcross will secret? Nobody ever knew exactly what he did with his money, except his nephew got most of it."

"I remember," said Inspector McGee. And then, on a sudden burst of laughter, "Gee! Wouldn't the newspapers give a heap to get this story you're going to tell!"

"They would," responded Rosalie Le Grange, "and that's why you'll never breathe a word to a soul. But there! I always knew who I could trust—an' you're one of 'em. The reason was a codicil or whatever you call it. He left me—in token of service and friendship," it said—an old house he owned over by North River, an' stocks—well six thousand a year to make one bite of it!"

"Good Lord! He did?" cried Martin McGee.

Rosalie nodded solemnly, but her eyes shone.

"Now I played that medium game on the square, you understand," she said, "again and again. I passed up chances to hook just such old dopes as Norcross. My rule was always straight sitting at two dollars a head, an' no extras. I faked 'em, of course. But I heartened 'em up. I handed 'em good advice. I kept silly fool girls from goin' to the bad. I gave weepy old widows the only real recreation they ever had. An' here, right at the end, comes an honest piece of money so big that I could have played crooked all my life, an' never even got a chance at anythin' like it. An' last March I come into my money. I closed up shop an' sold my test books an' stopped this medium business, an' started to be a lady. Six thousand a year ain't too much to do that job in New York, even when you don't have to pay house rent."

"There was six months' income waiting for me when the lawyers settled everything up, an' I put that into things that I wanted all my life. It wasn't till last week that I looked myself over an' found I wasn't happy. To make no bones of it, bein' a real lady—which I'd wanted to be all my life—just bored me to death. Well, last week I set down and had a good long dispute with myself. 'You can't go back to the business,' says I. 'Rosalie Le Grange, you've got jest what you've always wanted, an' yet you ain't happy. What you need is a compromise,' said I. An' next morning it come to me. Maybe the spirits sent it. You can laugh, Inspector McGee, but there's something in this spirit thing. I used to think there was, an' then again I'd think there wasn't—even in my own clairvoyance."

"Well, anyhow, it came to me like a flash—boarders! I could run my house just the way I wanted, because I needn't look out for profits. An' I could take jest who I wanted and shut out whoever I didn't want. The thought chirked me a lot. So I fixed all the bedrooms up sensible with good white and gold beds and adult-size towels an' gave them all little fixy touches that made them homelike."

"An' I was jest ready to begin to look around an' advertise when—this happened. The idea struck me as soon as I saw the state of the people in that house. The police would put it under guard, an' the boarders would be out of a home. So I moved 'em over bodily, all but the one you pinched—the sick little dago woman from up-stairs, an' the two girls, and that funny old Professor Noll. An' I'm even putting up with the landlady—if it was other people's troubles I was lookin' for, I got 'em all right!"

"Gee!" ejaculated Martin McGee. "I can use you—"

"Yes, you can," interrupted Rosalie, "but you won't. I know what you want. You want me to go to work an' help cinch this case. Well, I won't. I'm out of that business, too. What I'm here for, Martin McGee—beyond the pleasure I always took in your society"—here Rosalie let her dimples play and flash—"is to tell all I know or saw, so's you won't be callin' me at the inquest an' gettin' me a feature in the papers."

"How about this man North?" asked the Inspector.

"Well, in the first place, I like him," said Rosalie; "I like that boy. Looks like an alibi for him when the landlady says he come up the stairs only a minute before he hollered, an' the doctor says that this Hanska had been dead two or three hours. Appeared to me like he was jest jarred out of a drunk, too. How about this Lawrence Wade or whatever his name was—the man who called with the bag? Got him?"

"He was arrested this morning in Boston."

"Skippin'? Looks bad. But now, Inspector, just to close things up, I'm out of this case. I've given you all I know. Your police will be botherin' my boarders a lot with questions; an' so will the reporters. Just trust me to steer that. You keep me out."

Martin McGee sighed.

"All right, Rosalie; but I'd like your help. Still, I owe you lots of good turns, and the case don't look as mysterious, after all. I guess it's that fellow Wade."

"I guess probably," admitted Rosalie. "Most mysteries ain't mysteries at all after the first day. Well, now, I'm botherin' a busy man in office hours an' I must run along. Let's see—five minutes to four, an' it's bad luck to go before the hour. Suppose you tell me about yourself an' how the world's usin' you?"

Inspector McGee sat back in his office chair and waxed eloquent. However, his narrative of pulls and promotions and Tammany influence was never finished. For before the hour struck, the silent attentive doorman entered and laid on his desk a card. Inspector McGee took it up, glanced at it perfunctorily, and suddenly let out an exclamation which had all the power and verve of an oath.

"By the great cats!" he exclaimed, "look at that—Mrs. John H. Hanska!"

Rosalie took the card and fingered it.

"The widow, I bet."

"Thought he was single," remarked the Inspector. "Though, after all, I'd just been taking it for granted."

"Well," said Rosalie, rising, "that's come-again-son for me."

But the Inspector was observing her with eyes which held quizzical invitation.

"Honest now," he said, "wouldn't you like to sit in on this interview?"

Rosalie flashed her dimples and contemplated him for a second. Then, with the unexpected lightness which marked all her movements, she sat down.

"See here, Martin McGee," she said, "you ain't goin' to make a fool of me, draggin' me into this case—but I'm dyin' to listen just the same."

"Show them in," said the Inspector on the instant, and as though fearing that she would pull back her permission.

"But not unless she's willing," said Rosalie, as they waited.

And then through the door came two women.

"Good Lord!" commented Rosalie under her breath.

Selling Eggs by the Pound.

Canada has been making the experiment of selling eggs by the pound instead of by the dozen, according to Consul Fred C. Slater, Sarnia, Ontario.

"The only obstacle in the way of a unanimous indorsement of the plan is seemingly that the public has not been educated to buy that way," says Mr. Slater. "As refuting this objection it is pointed out that, in view of the wide variation in the size of eggs, the consumer would quickly realize that the system affords a fair and just basis of charge."

LIVE STOCK

ANIMAL FATS ARE REQUIRED

Both the Feeder and the Nation Will Benefit if Pigs Are Fed to Heavier Weights.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

While the little pig makes a pound for pound gain on less feed than the older hog, there are advantages from both an individual and a national standpoint in feeding hogs to a heavier weight. Animal fats are needed. No way exists of increasing the supply more rapidly than by building up the number of swine in the country. And as every farmer knows, it's the heavy hog that carries the fat. The need for fat also was reflected in the market in December by a wider spread in prices paid for receipts, the fat hogs topping the market.

Market reports for early winter also showed that hogs were being sent to packing centers at a much heavier average weight than has been the custom for some time, thus indicating that farmers were finding it profitable as well as patriotic to put more fat on their hogs. The feeding for more weight has been done by the farmers in direct response to the many requests that hog production be increased. It was impossible to enlarge the number of hogs immediately; that will come with the spring litters, and again in the fall. It was possible, however, to add weight to the hogs on hand. An abundance of feed, although in some localities of poor quality, has greatly favored farmers, and those favorably situated should feed hogs until they weigh 250 to 300 pounds. Not only have they kept hogs on their farms until the animals carried weight, but the demand at packing centers for feeder or light-weight hogs to be shipped back to the country was unprecedented during the early winter.

Those who have to buy feed or find it necessary to economize on feed which they have purchased may find it more to their advantage to market hogs at lighter weight because of the relative slowness and higher cost of putting flesh and fat on heavy hogs. A weight of about 200 pounds may be attained at from ten to eleven months of age.

FEEDING THE SUCKLING PIGS

Shelled Corn Is Particularly Good When They Begin to Nose Around for Food.

(From the United States Department of Agriculture.)

When the pigs are about three weeks old, sometimes less, they will begin to nose around for something to eat. If they are going to do as they should this something must be supplied. One of the best feeds at this particular time is shelled corn. It should be in a self-feeder in a pen where the pigs can go to it and will not be bothered by any of the rest of the hogs. This can be arranged by a creep just large enough to admit the pigs handily. Don't forget that these little fellows grow quite rapidly and from time to time the creep must be made larger. After the pigs are 4 or 5 weeks old, especially if they do not have good grass pasture, the addition of some shorts, tankage, or oil meal is advisable. Nothing would be better, however, than skim milk. The self-feeder in which is kept corn and other feeds should be maintained right along up until weaning time, and after that if the pig is intended for market purposes. Pigs to be used for breeding purposes may be kept on a self-feeder all the time with splendid results, but in some cases they get too fat and logy and do not take the proper exercise. The most profitable pig is the one that never quits growing from farrowing time until he is driven over the scales.

PROPER BROOD-SOW RATIOS

Feed Has Much to Do With Strength of Litter—Results Obtained at Iowa Station.

The brood sow's ration has much to do with the strength of the litter, according to results obtained at the Iowa experiment station.

In a lot of gilts fed a ration of ear corn plus one-tenth as much tankage by weight, 98 per cent of the pigs were classed as strong at birth. The percentage of strong pigs with corn alone was 68. The percentage with other rations follows:

Shelled corn, chopped clover and molasses, 86 per cent strong; ear corn plus clover in rack, 94 per cent strong; ear corn plus alfalfa in rack, 94 per cent strong.

The cost of new-born pigs with ear corn and clover was 31 cents, with ear corn and alfalfa 32 cents, with ear corn and tankage 19 cents, and with ear corn only 41 cents. These cost figures were based on corn at 50 cents a bushel, and would have to be multiplied by 2½ or three to make them apply to present conditions.

PRODUCTION OF LIVE STOCK

Good Permanent Pastures, Leguminous Crops, Silo and Purebreds Are Essential.

(From the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Where live stock is a factor on the farm, make every field hog-tight and sheep-tight; have thoroughly good permanent pastures; grow leguminous crops; build a silo; and keep only purebred males. These five things are absolutely essential in the economical production of live stock. Of course, this program calls for some labor and expense, but the permanent condition of prosperity in the sections devoted to live stock production is proof of the good profit derived therefrom.

Good Service.

Probably no order that has been issued by the director general of the railroads has been read with more interest by local railroad employees than the one which bars them from active participation in partisan politics.

Coming state and federal elections, as well as the primary contests, the director general announced in a formal statement to all railroad men, make it imperative that the conduct of all should be so scrupulously guarded that there can be no charge, direct or indirect, of railroad influence.

Pointing out that while railroads were under private management it was common report that their participation in politics was widespread, Mr. McAdoo declares that under government control there are no longer private interests to serve and that the incentive to political activity no longer exists.

"Under government control," says the announcement, there is no inducement to officers and employees to engage in politics. On the contrary they owe a high duty to the public scrupulously to abstain therefrom.

As a definite policy of the railroad administration, McAdoo announced that no railroad officer, attorney or employee may do any of the following things:

Be an officer or member of any political committee or organization that solicits funds for political purposes.

Be a delegate, a chairman or an officer in any political convention.

Solicit or receive funds for any political purpose or contribute to any political fund collected by an official or employee of any railroad, or any official or employee of the United States or of any state.

Assume the conduct of any political campaign.

Attempt to coerce or intimidate another officer or employee in his vote. (Violation of this rule, McAdoo says, will result in immediate dismissal.)

Become a candidate for any political office.

ical office. Those who desire to run for office or engage in politics must immediately sever their connection with the United States railroad service.

Members of the local school or park board will not be construed as a political office.

Calling on all the railroad men to carry out the spirit of the policy so announced, the director general says:

"Let us demonstrate to the American people that under federal control railroad officers, attorneys and employees can not be made part of any political machine nor be used for any organized partisan or selfish purpose. Let us set such a high standard of public duty and service that it will be worthy of general emulation."
